Archives Collaborative

The Women Religious Archives Collaborative has been fortunate in the many partnerships we have formed since the project's inception. In this issue we would like to highlight our architectural choice, Bostwick Design Partnership. Bostwick will introduce their team and their design philosophy. For a look at their work we invite you to Bostwick's website to view some of their designs bostwickdesigns.com

FROM BOSTWICK DESIGN PARTNERSHIP

The Women Religious Archives Collaborative's (WRAC) vision for a new Archive Center in Cleveland's Central neighborhood is deeply inspiring to all of us at Bostwick Design Partnership. The archive will be a vital resource for Women Religious nationally, and a significant enhancement to the St. Vincent Charity Health Campus locally.

Bostwick Design is an architecture firm that designs for people, creating places that enrich wellness, learning, and community. This project, so well aligned with our core values and located less than a mile from our Cleveland office, is a once-in-a-generation opportunity and we're thrilled to be designing it!

We make a meaningful and positive impact through our...

The Women Religious Archive Center aligns with our passion to design diverse, challenging, and fulfilling projects. We see this center as a promise: you are inviting congregations to part with archives that chronicle the history of their works. You are honoring this act of faith on their part by promising that these irreplaceable documents and artifacts will be safe and well organized, and the stories they tell will be preserved, and shared locally, regionally, even globally.

"The Women Religious Archives Collaborative will bring visibility to the important histories and mission of Women Religious through the construction and operation of a facility and online presence that will provide space and access for exhibits, education, meetings, research, and archival storage."

Our process relies on the power of authentic collaboration. We rely on active collaborators, true partners who shape design through informed choices from team-driven, logically communicated options. And we don't simply preach this kind of teamwork, we live it: you'll find no private offices in our firm, partners and student interns occupy the same desks in an open studio landscape. We believe in the benefits of cultural transparency, to accelerate communication in the creative and technical process.

Our team has been brought together specifically to include a diverse cross-section of the design community to support the WRAC project. We bring distinct shared and lived experience that will allow us to problem solve on a deeper level.

Our team includes a local presence with a national perspective. McClure Engineering team's prior work for the Jesuit Archives Research Center in St Louis brings expertise from a national precedent for the WRAC.

We are personally committed to supporting the WRAC and will do what it takes to help the project succeed, which helps our city succeed, which in turn helps us succeed.
